

PORTUGAL DUO

Why Portugal

In 2016, U.S. travel to Portugal outpaced overall international tourism. So why is now the time for Portugal? According to travel experts there are a host of reasons: new hotel openings, a vibrant food scene and a cultural rebirth that seems remarkably fresh and unique. From great wine to amazing beaches, wonderful museums to plenty of great shopping, there's a lot to see and do in this small country; and there's never been a better time to go.

Lisbon

In the capital city of Lisbon the Tower of Belem is hard to miss. Looming over the harbor, this UNESCO World Heritage site is an unforgettable landmark thanks to the many unexpected figures hidden in the design. The newest culinary attraction is the Mercado, a hundred-year-old market turned into a hip food court. Make sure your clients enjoy the tapas, the Michelin Star-rated eateries and the country's famous egg tarts -- all while getting to know the locals at the canteen-style tables.

Algarve

The Algarve Coast is known for a string of stunning beaches and sheer seaside cliffs but fun in the sun is only part of this region's charm. Exciting nightlife, an ancient Moorish capital and thermal springs prove there's plenty of authentic experiences to be had. The warm Mediterranean climate and relative affordability make this the ideal getaway.
